MANDOR

(Mando’a Alphabet)

The Mando’a alphabet consists of thirty-two letters in the following sequence:

MANDO’A VOWELS

The Mando’a vowels are  and . The sounds of the Mando’a vowels are:

	[ah]	as in garden, bath
	[oh]	as in orange, open
	[ay/ey]	as in day, grey
	[e]	as in step, men
	[ee]	as in flee, see
	[ai]	as in bye, eye
	[oo/uu]	as in soup, book
	[a]	as in pun, under
	[i]	as in rib, sip
	[oy]	as in toy, boy
	[uy]	as in buoy, chewy

MANDO’A CONSONANTS

The sounds of Mando’a consonants are:

	[m]	as in make
	[n]	as in not
	[d]	as in dad
	[r]	as in run
	[h]	as in hunt
	[b]	as in ball
	[y]	as in yes, yarn
	[t]	as in tap
	[sh]	as in shake
	[j]	as in just, jar
	[c/k]	as in curse, kill
	[l]	as in lost
	[s]	as in sap
	[v]	as in very
	[p]	as in pan
	[z]	as in zap *
	[g]	as in gall
	[ch]	as in chair
	[w]	as in wise
	[f/v]	as in funk
	beten	glottal stop ***

 letter* is the most uncommon in mandalorian alphabet, only used in transliteration of foreign words or very rarely to indicate the combination of «ts» which sounds like [z].

 letter* is not present in mandalorian original alphabet but was included in it after the culture made contact with other species and language and felt the need to transliterate some of the foreign words or names.

 ‘glottal stop*’ is the little pause you make between vowels when you say «oh-oh».*

WORD ORDER

The word order of Mando’a is in AVOL format the same as with English.

A = Actor
V = Verb
O = Object
L = Location

Example:

He	takes	(the)weapon	to	battlefield.
actor	verb	object		location

TENSES DEFINITION

As it later will be explained mandalorians mostly use present tense, but in some cases when it is needed the future and past tense can be constructed with use of prefixes «» and «».

Examples:

He took the weapon to battlefield.

He will take the weapon to battlefield.

VERBS

Mando’a verbs can be made from nouns by adding the appropriate conjugation. In formal Mando’a there is only one verb conjugation. This is for the infinitive and command forms. The infinitive and formal command forms end in two ways. With a word that ends in a consonant a vowel and the «- » must be added to produce the verb. With words that end in a vowel only the «- » must be added.
In informal Mando’a there are additional words that allow distinction between other verb forms.
The command verb form is formed by using the word « » before the verb or the prefix « » when the verb starts with a vowel. The informal future tense is formed by adding the word « » in front of the verb. The informal present tense is formed simply by using the root verb without additional words, prefixes, or suffixes. The past tense of a verb is formed by adding the word « » in front of the verb. To create the negative form of a verb add the prefix « », « », « », or « » before either the whole sentence or the negative phrase. In sentence the infinitive «- » in the acting verb is dropped. The subject verbs are used in the infinitive form.

Example:

We plan to destroy the city.

OTHER VERB NOTES

The verb «» (to be) is frequently dropped and indicated by word order. When saying something to describe the word « » (it) the correct Mando’a form is to just say the word « » (good) or the full form with the verb « » (it is good).

FORMS OF THE VERB CUYIR

	I am		We are
	You are		You are
	He/she is		They are
	It is

PASSIVE VOICE

Passive voice in Mando’a is extremely rarely used, for Mando’a is mostly a commanding language.
To create a passive voice from verb a prefix «» (before consonant) or « » (before vowel) was used.
When using the passive voice the object is placed in the beginning of the sentence and the subject is placed at the end with a prefix « », « » or « ».

Examples:

The captain was killed yesterday by a spy.

The blockade was broken in a single day.

The more modern form of creating passive voice is contextual with using verb «» and prefix « » for the subject and putting the object in the beginning of the sentence. But it’s still very rarely used.

Examples:

I hear him.

I heard him.

I was heard (overheard) by him.

The city burns.

The city is being burned.

PROGRESSIVE AND GERUND

Progressive and gerund (progressive verb used as a noun) forms of the verb was also very rarely used being an archaic word forms and were almost totally abandoned by the time Mandalorians conquered and established their homeworld.
To create progressive form the verb ending «- » is dropped and replaced with « ». In sentence the progressive verb is always used with verb «».

Examples:
I am eating
He is running

Literally this basically means «He does the running».

Eating is delight in itself.

MODAL VERBS / PREFIXES

The usage of modal verbs in very rare in Mando'a, but it does happen. Unlike English the modal verbs in Mando'a are not independent words but prefixes to the carrier verb.
The existing modal «prefixes» are as follows:

	must / have to should could shall will may used to

Examples:
You must (have to) kill him.

You will have to kill him.

You should kill him.

You could have killed him.

You shall kill him.

You may kill him.

You used to kill a lot.

In negative or question forms of the sentence the prefixes are used as independent words and put in front of the carrier verb.

	must not / will not have to should not could not shall not will not may not wasn't used to

Examples:

You must not (don't have to) kill him.
Must you (do you have to) kill him?

You won't have to kill him.
Will you have to kill him?

You shouldn't kill him.
Should you kill him?

You couldn't have killed him.
Could you kill him?

You shall not kill him.
Shall you kill him?

You may not kill him.
May you kill him?

You weren't used to kill a lot.
Were you used to kill a lot?

VERB TENSES

Just as a reminder, mandalorians rarely use other tenses beside present simple, past and future simple are rare but used also when needed. Other more complex verb forms are so rare, that you may spend decades inside mandalorian community and never hear them being used. But for academic purposes, here they all are:

	Simple	Progressive	Passive	Passive progressive
Present				Past				Future
FORMING QUESTIONS

The addition of the prefix word «» turns a statement into a question. To form a question the word in question is put at the beginning of the sentence and the «» prefix is added to it.

Examples:

We are learning mando'a fast.

Are we learning mando'a FAST?

Are we learning MANDO'A fast?

Are WE learning mando'a fast?

There are also specific question words that can be used when making a question. They are:

	Who?
	Which? what? (before a vowel)
	Which? What? (before a consonant)
	When?
	Where?
	Why?
	How many? How much?
	How?
	What if?
	What about?

FORMING COMMANDS

The addition of the prefix « -» turns a statement into command. To form a command the commanding verb is placed in the beginning of the sentence and the prefix « -» is added.

Examples:

I carry a sword to battlefield

Carry a sword to battlefield!

or

Carry your sword to battlefield!

The performer of the task can also be distinguished by the prefix « -» but it's rare.

Example:

You carry a sword to battlefield!

NOUNS

Gender nouns are the same for masculine, feminine, and neuter. Gender is implied contextually, if relevant. Where gender clarity is necessary, the adjectives «» (male) or «» (female) are added.

PLURALS

Plurals are formed by adding «-» (after consonant) or «-» (after vowel) to the end of the noun.

POSSESSIVE FORM

Creating a possessive form in Mando'a is mostly contextual. The easiest way is using the preposition «» (of) or possessive prefix «». The difference between them is the same as between English «Saber of Boba» and «Boba's saber»

Example:

	Saber of Boba
	Boba's saber

Possessives are sometimes indicated simply by the proper noun preceding the word and in informal Mando'a it's the most common form.

Example:

	Boba's saber

The rare and archaic form of possessive noun is adding the « » or « » as a suffix.

Examples:

	Boba's saber
	Jedi's saber

PRONOUNS

Pronouns have no gender. Most pronouns are also possessives.
Below is a list of Mando'a pronouns:

	I/me		my/mine
	you/your he/him/his/she/her it (rare)
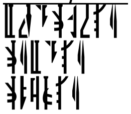
	we/us		our
	you/your (plural)
	they/them/their

ADJECTIVES AND ADVERBS

Adjectives and adverbs are formed by the addition of one of two suffixes. The suffix «-» should be added when the root word ends a vowel. The suffix «-» should be used when the root word ends in a consonant. Mostly suffixes are used in a way it would be easier to pronounce or in their traditional form.

Examples:



COMPARATIVES AND SUPERLATIVES

Comparatives and superlatives are constructed from adjectives with a specific suffix for each.
The suffix «- » for the comparative. The suffix «- » for the superlative.

Examples:

	bad worse worst cold colder coldest stupid more stupid most stupid

CONJUNCTIONS

	who (as in «I knew a guy, who was there») that (as in «I know that you've been there») about (as in «I never heard about it») how (as in «That's how I did it») why (as in «That's why I did it») which, what (before a consonant) (as in «My apple, which is bigger than yours») which, what (before a vowel) (as in «My apple, which is bigger than yours»)
	if (as in «I'll kill you if you do it») when (as in «I'll pay you when you deliver the goods») where (as in «He never knew where it came from»)

USAGE OF BETEN AND PRONOUNCIATION

Beten, designated in written Mando'a by is described as «glottal stop». To pronounce is correctly one must issue a «sound» one makes when saying «oh-oh» in between the oh's. The usage of beten is mostly to separate two (or more) roots in complex words, or to separate too many consonants or too many vowels going in succession. This however is not a strict rule. The words can be modified with suffixes and prefixes and beten would be dropped or moved.

Example:

 >
Putting beten in the word does not change the meaning, as well as taking it out does not either. The usage is simply for ease of pronunciation. Sometimes it may be not even «issued» when pronouncing words for there is no difficulty in pronouncing them. In written Mando'a its main purpose is separation of word roots from one another and separation of prefixes and suffixes.

CREATING NOUNS FROM VERBS

For the words not having their specific form it's easy to create a noun from a verb if it ends with «- ». If the verb ends in «- », to create a performer of the action the ending is changed to «- ». To create the subject of the action the ending is replaced with «- ».

Examples:

	to run the run runner to punish punishment punisher

WRITING MANDO'A

For all intents and purposes, Mando'a is a phonetic language, which means, you write the words just as you hear them. There are no complex letter combinations, diphthongs or special rules for writing certain sounds (like in English «oo» is read as [u:], but at the same time «door» is read as [do:r]).

Sometimes for dividing certain words that have similar pronunciation from one another, mandalorians use double consonants or vowels, but they aren't written as double. They use underbar for indicating the doubled letter.

Example:

	but feeling

The other common tool for dividing two similar words is the usage of beten:

Example:

	wholeness ultimate

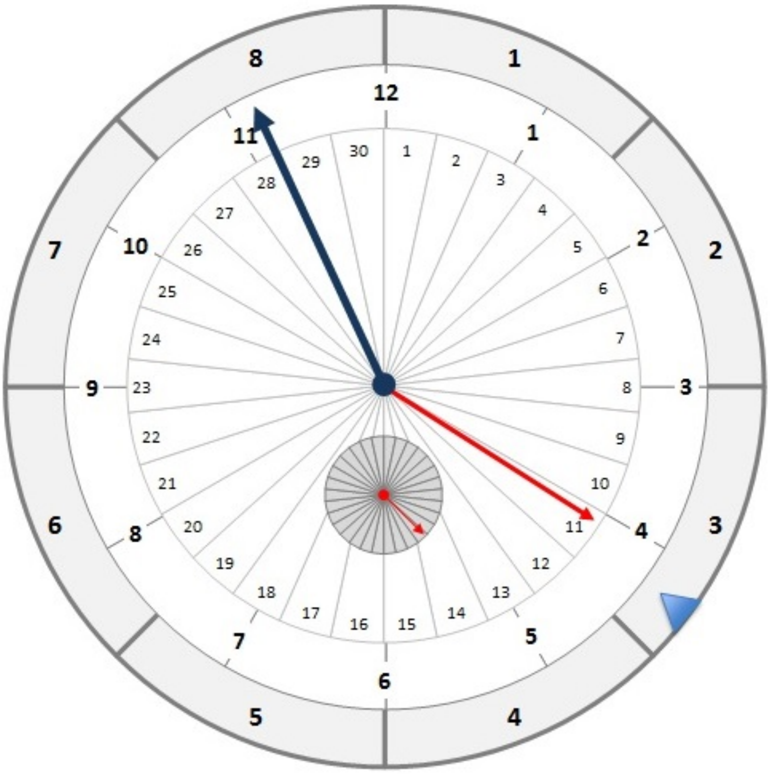
There are no capital letters in Mando'a.

MANDALORIAN TIME SYSTEM

CLOCK TIME

The time measurements are different than with the standard clock. The Mandalorian time measurement are based on the [illegible], second. There are thirty [illegible] in one [illegible]. A [illegible] is similar to a minute but is thirty seconds less. The next unit is the [illegible], there are thirty [illegible] in one [illegible]. The [illegible] is a quarter of standard hour. The next highest unit is the [illegible]. This unit consists of three [illegible]. There are twelve [illegible] in one [illegible]. There are eight [illegible] in one [illegible], day. Overall length of the day is the same as standard clock, exactly 86 400 seconds.

Mando Clock
2:11:10 (11) = 8:50:11 (am)



The basis for such a complicated time measurement was the need to divide the day into watches or shifts. So firstly the day was divided into 8 watches, from which 3 were working hours by the roster. The further division into smaller units came later with the need to specify time in more accurate way.
There are few ways of telling the time in Mando'a.

Example: 4:2:10 (0)

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].
It is two hours and ten minutes of the fifth watch.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].
Two and ten of the fifth watch.

[illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].
Fifth, two and ten.

Sometimes instead of saying «[illegible] [illegible]» or «[illegible]» mandalorians simply say «[illegible]».

Examples:
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].
It's one hour of the fourth watch.

[illegible], [illegible] [illegible].
The fourth, one hour sharp.

MANDALORIAN CALENDAR

Mandalorian calendar consists of four seasons ( ) and twelve months (). Each month has 30 or 31 days in it, the summer and winter seasons being the longest and spring and autumn the shortest. The total number of days is 365 and 366 in leap year. In case of the former the last month of the year is only 29 days long.

of days	month	season
31 31	 	 Winter
31 30 30	  	 Spring
30 31 31	  	 Summer
31 30 30	  	 Autumn
29 (30)		 Winter

Mandalorian week consists of five days. There is no normal «weekends» as there are on Earth like Saturday and Sunday being weekly holidays, every day in mandalorian week is a workday. Holidays or «weekends» are traditionally scheduled by roster, but in modern days they are decided mostly by each individual for himself (as many are farmers working for themselves) or by the employer (in case one works for Mandal Motors for example), in which case it is again by roster.

	Mando	English
1		Monday
2		Tuesday
3		Wednesday
4		Thursday
5		Friday
6		Saturday
7		Sunday

Example:

Today is the 8th of the 9th month (September), third week day (Wednesday).

When describing the time of the event the preposition «» (in) should be used.

Examples:

We went there yesterday.

I will go there on Monday.

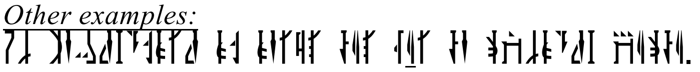
Stating the time for the planned event requires the preposition «» (at) when stating the exact time or «» (in) when describing the period.

Examples:

We are meeting at 3:6:00.

We’ll meet on 4’th watch.

Other examples:



We should meet before (by) 3:6:00.

We’ll meet after the 4’th watch (ends).

We’ll meet around 3:6:00 tomorrow.

I will be there through 3’rd to 5’th watch. (from 9 am to 6 pm).

The shortest way of telling the exact time where you don’t need to mention minutes is in military style, like in English saying «8:00 am» as «oh-eight hundred».

Examples:

4:2:00

5:11:00

THE RESOL'NARE

The Resol'nare is a code of six acts that define one to be Mandalorian and are the central tenets of their society. This code is self-perpetuating and was directly responsible for ensuring the survival of the Mandalorian culture and society long after the original Mandalorians, the Taung, became extinct. Mandalorians who do not or can not embrace and live according to these tenets are thought to lack Manda and are believed to be dar'manda, a state of separation from the soul of the people which Mandalorians find emotionally painful and shameful.

Ke'juri beskar'gam

(Wear armor)

Once Mandalorians reach adulthood, they assemble a suit of armor that suits their needs and skills and wear it in public through their daily lives. This armor serves as a tool, a visual designation of their status as warriors and a symbol of their cultural identity. When among outsiders, many Mandalorians will not even remove their helmets.

Ke'jorhaa'i Mando'a

(Speak Mandalorian)

While most Mandalorians know and speak Basic and other languages, all are raised speaking Mando'a, the language of the Taungs. When among themselves, they speak Mando'a almost exclusively. The language itself is very fluid and simple, reflecting the culture of which it is a part, and like the culture, it has changed very little over the centuries.

K'ara'novo aliit

(Defend the family)

While the Mandalorians are best known as a warrior culture, they are also fiercely family oriented. It is expected that Mandlorians will start families once they are able to do so. Not wanting to do so is difficult for a Mandalorian to understand. Each member of a family is expected to protect the others, guaranteeing their survival and through this, ensuring the survival of the clan and culture.

Ke'gaa'tbli aliit bralir

(Help the clan to succeed)

Each individual and family is expected to contribute to the welfare and prosperity of their clan, which in turn helps provide for the family and individual as needed. This act is far from the socialist prop it first seems, as it is a necessity for a society that spends a great deal of its time at war to provide for such necessities as food, shelter and manufactured goods when a large number of a clan's adults are on other worlds fighting.

Ke'ba'juri sa Mando'ade

(Raise children as Mandalorians)

It is a Mandalorian's responsibility to raise children in the traditions of their culture. However this is not simply an imperative to breed, as it might seem on the surface. Mandalorians often adopt their children, caring very little for blood lineage and bowing to the necessities created by their lifestyles as nomadic warriors. This act is a mandate to perpetuate the culture, as are the majority of the Six Acts, by passing it down to both offspring and adopted war orphans.

Ke'[illegible] haa Mand'alor

(Rally to the cause of the Mand'alor)

While the social structure of the Mandalorians is very simple, revolving around family and clan, each clan and family answering to itself, in times of war all families and clans are expected to answer a call to war by the Mand'alor, the leader of the Mandalorian people.

Child's version as it's taught to children:

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First of all. Karen!!!! Wherever you are and whatever you do, we THANK YOU for this wonderful, interesting, complicated and atmospheric language along with culture and all the rest of the stuff!!!! You, somehow, inspired a hell lot of people to actually embrace the culture as if it wasn't a fiction for the book but a living and breathing thing!

Secondly, George Lucas, Lucasfilm etc. etc. Sorry for the cold acknowledgement, but you did flush all that was really Mandalorain down the pipes without a second thought. But thanks for the Star Wars universe, we still love it.

Now I personally want to thank the mysterious (to me) individual, who created a well known «Mando'a Alphabet and pronunciation» guide also known as «MLD.pdf». Without this rather compact guide I probably wouldn't even go as far as I went. If you do have a name, please come into the light, I want to shake your hand.

Next the greatest thanks goes to the community of Mandoa.org, especially to Adi'karta for creating the place where people interested in this language can meet and share ideas, helping the Mando'a to survive, grow and develop. And then to Vlet Hansen, who gave quite a number of ideas and comments on my work, which helped me find errors and fix them in time. Raeth for great ideas on the grammar expansion. MsLanna for numerous ideas and comments which are always helpful.

And of course the rest of the people who shared their ideas and word constructs all over the net, mainly on mandoa.org, and whose word constructs found their way into this guide. You are too numerous to name personally but your contribution to the development of the language won't be ungratified! You know who you are, .

And finally thanks to my dear wife for not kicking me out of the house for spending so much time on this! I love you, darling.

Sincerely yours,
